

ALCESTER RFC MATCH REPORTS

Saturday 6th February 2010

Alcester 0 Birmingham Medics 84

Alcester hosted the annual visit of the University of Birmingham Medical students for their fixture which is often secondary to their after match fun and frolics, but there was little fun for the depleted home side on the pitch in this match as they were put to the sword by their skilful student opponents.

Whereas in previous years the Medics have run away with the match in the final quarter after an even opening hour, there was no such script on this occasion as the visitors dominated from start to finish, against an Alcester side missing two thirds of their regular 1st XV.

In the end the home side were glad to retire to the sanctuary of the bar and to drown their sorrows after a disappointing afternoon. They will hope to get their regulars back ahead of next weekend's return to league action and the difficult away trip to form side Keresley.

The seconds also return to action next weekend when they host another Coventry side, Trinity Guild for a Warwickshire 2nd XV fixture. Both fixtures kick off at 2.15pm.
